Lots of people enjoy looking at other people who aren't wearing any clothes. Hell, it might be what led you to this website the first time you visited. But for the five men and one woman in the graphics department on Discovery Channel's hit show Naked and Afraid, it's all part of the job. "The Blur Man Group," as it's known, spends its days blurring out naughty bits for primetime television consumption.

My husband – full, naked disclosure! – is one of these artists, and I spoke to the graphics team about its work on Naked and Afraid. The popular survival-based reality show has been nominated for an Emmy for Best Unstructured Reality series and is up for NATPE's (National Association of Television Program Executives) second annual Reality Breakthrough award on January 20, an award the show won last year.
